Piecing it all together,
the essence that impels people
to strive for peace,
people like Washington,
Lincoln, Kennedy and King,
to question and propose formulas
for peace,
is each person's idea of peace.
Whether it be personal
or global in its ideal,
each method of achieving
such a desirable state
is unique.

Political figures forcefully demand,
stage orations,
and write themes of peace.

Often times it is those who are reaching upward
that possess the greatest desire
and force.

Certainly the men of the Civil War,
World War II, and today,
also have a unique dream
of peace.

As abstract as each individual
dream may be,
each man's abstract speck of slash
adds to a bigger form,
which yields, ultimately,
a recognizable blueprint of tranquility.

Now, through rallies, demonstrations,
and mass togetherness,
we, too, have in our own way
placed our spot on the blueprint.
We have, consciously, or unconsciously,
by being born in this time
and generation,
dedicated our very existence to an ideal. It is to those of yesterday and we of today,
who strive for peace,
that we dedicate this book.
We leave our attempts as evidence
so those of the future may live
in the actual existence
of what today is for us,
a unique ideal.

Is peace a dream . . .

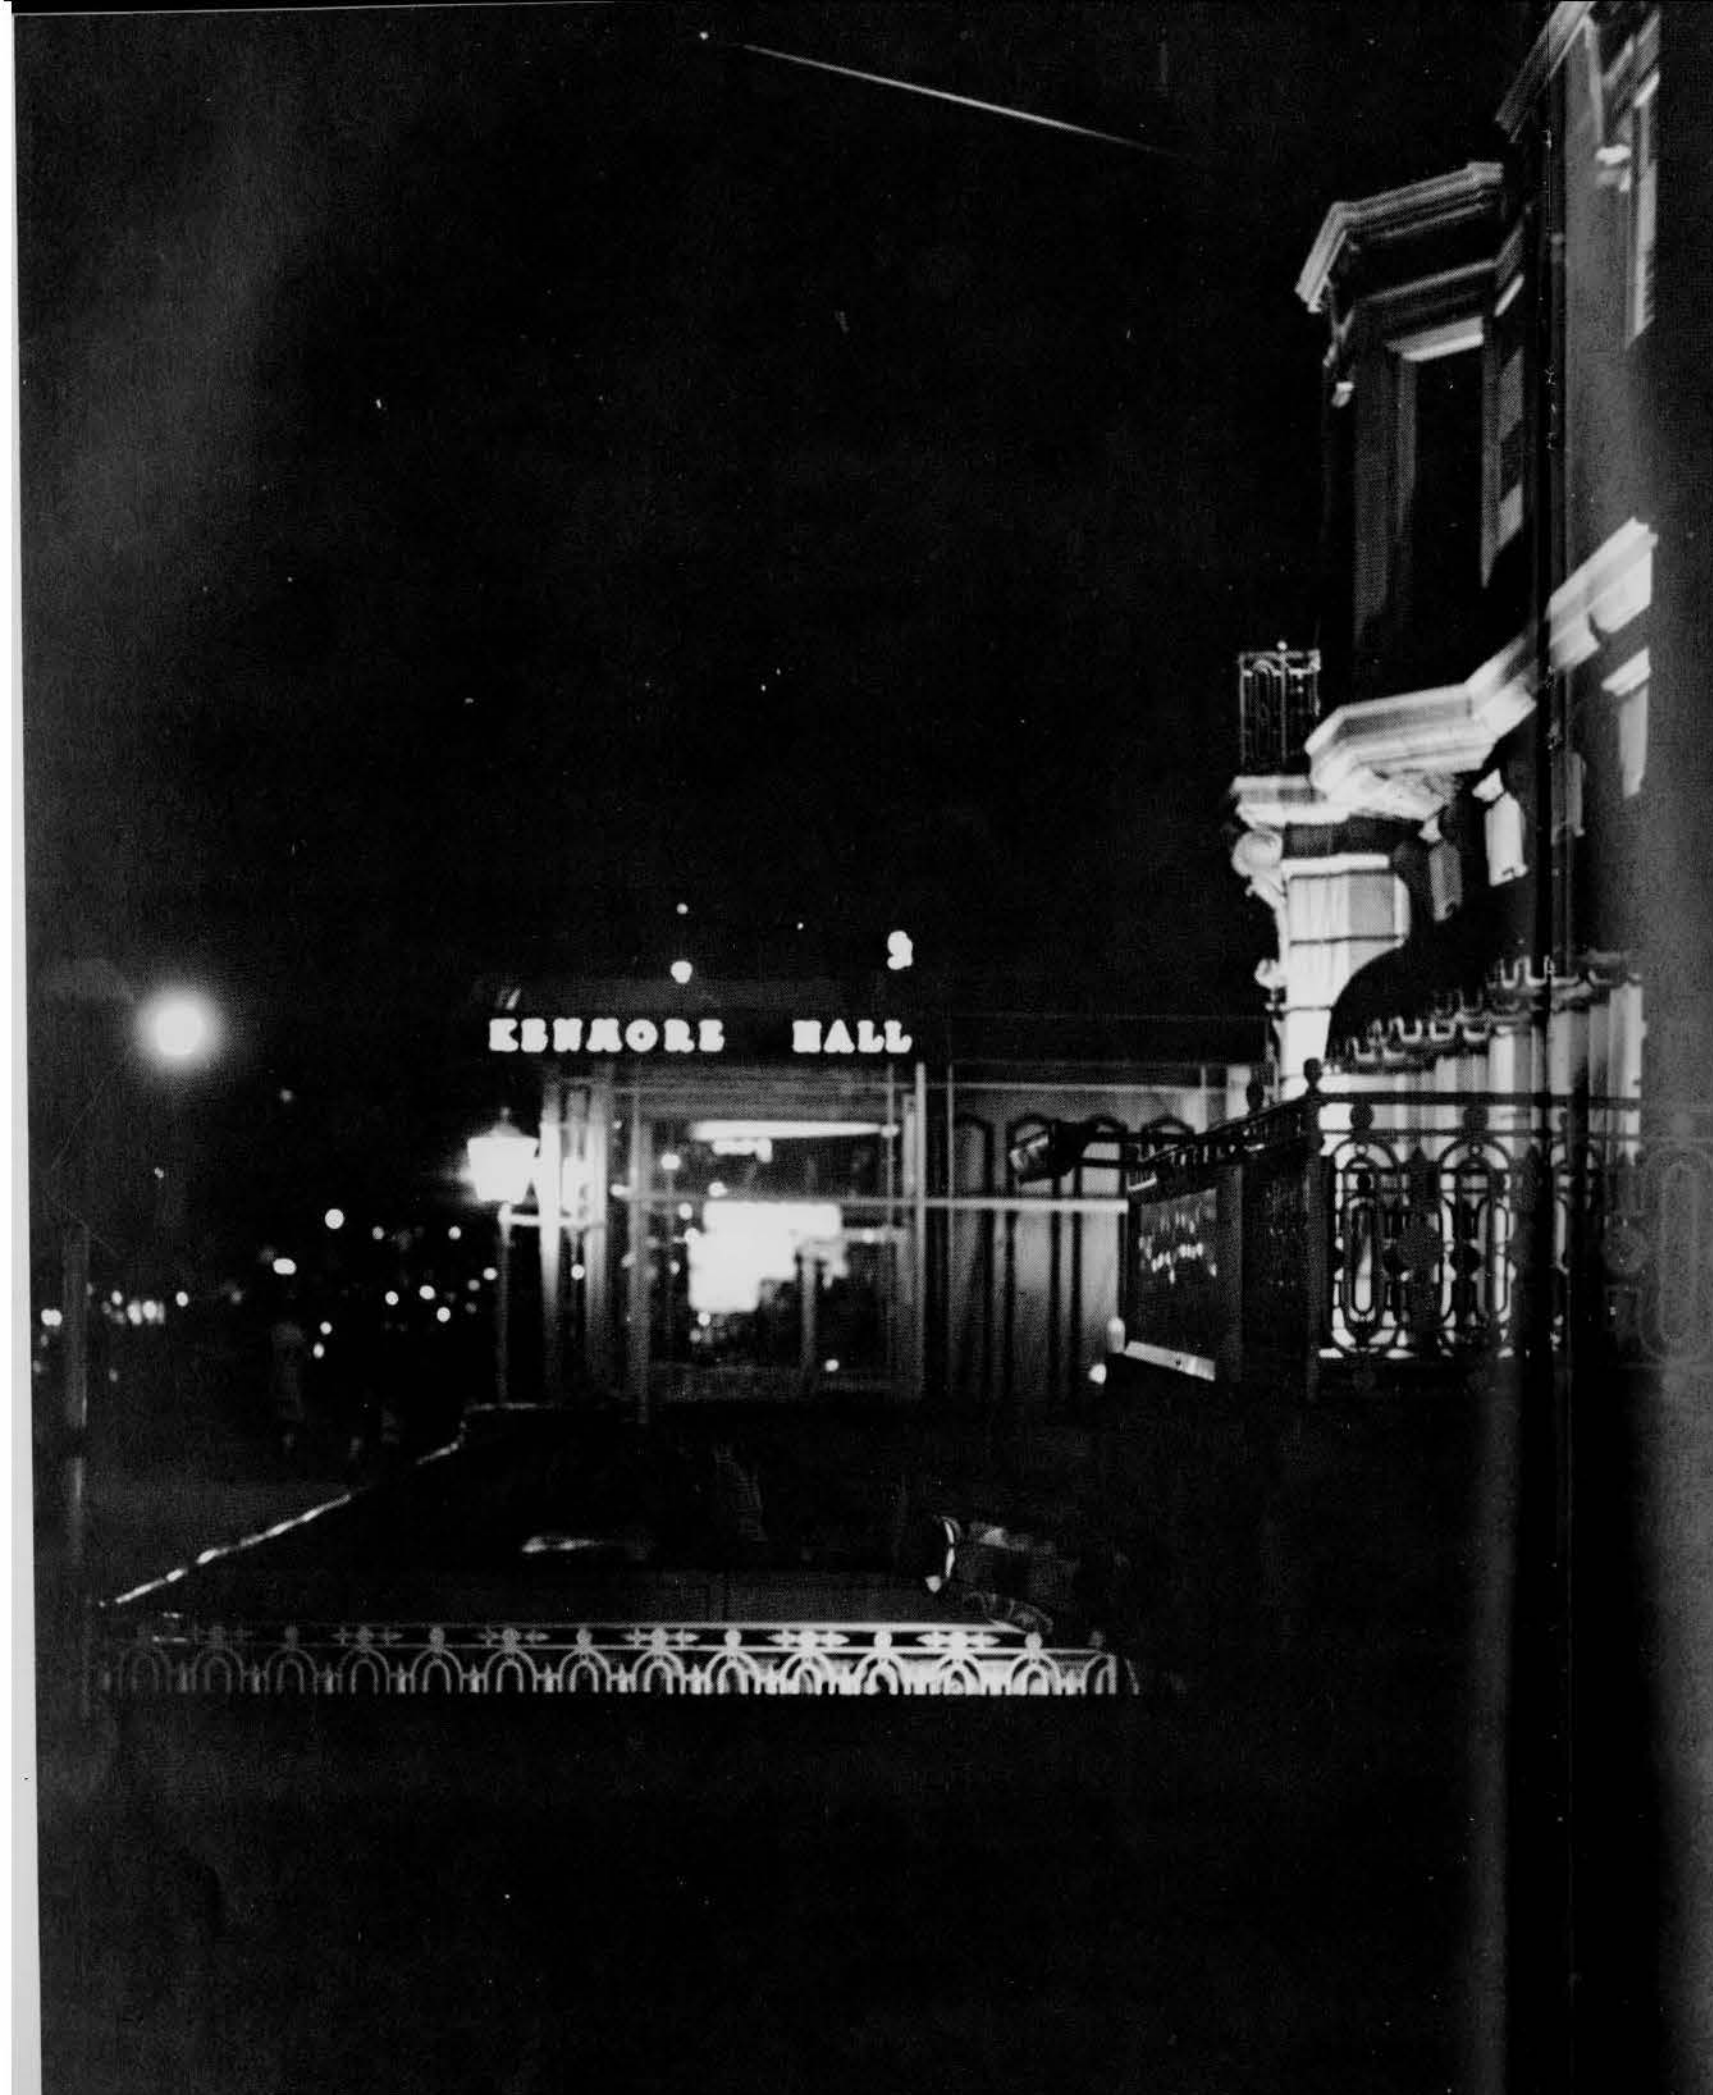

or an ideal within
man's grasp?

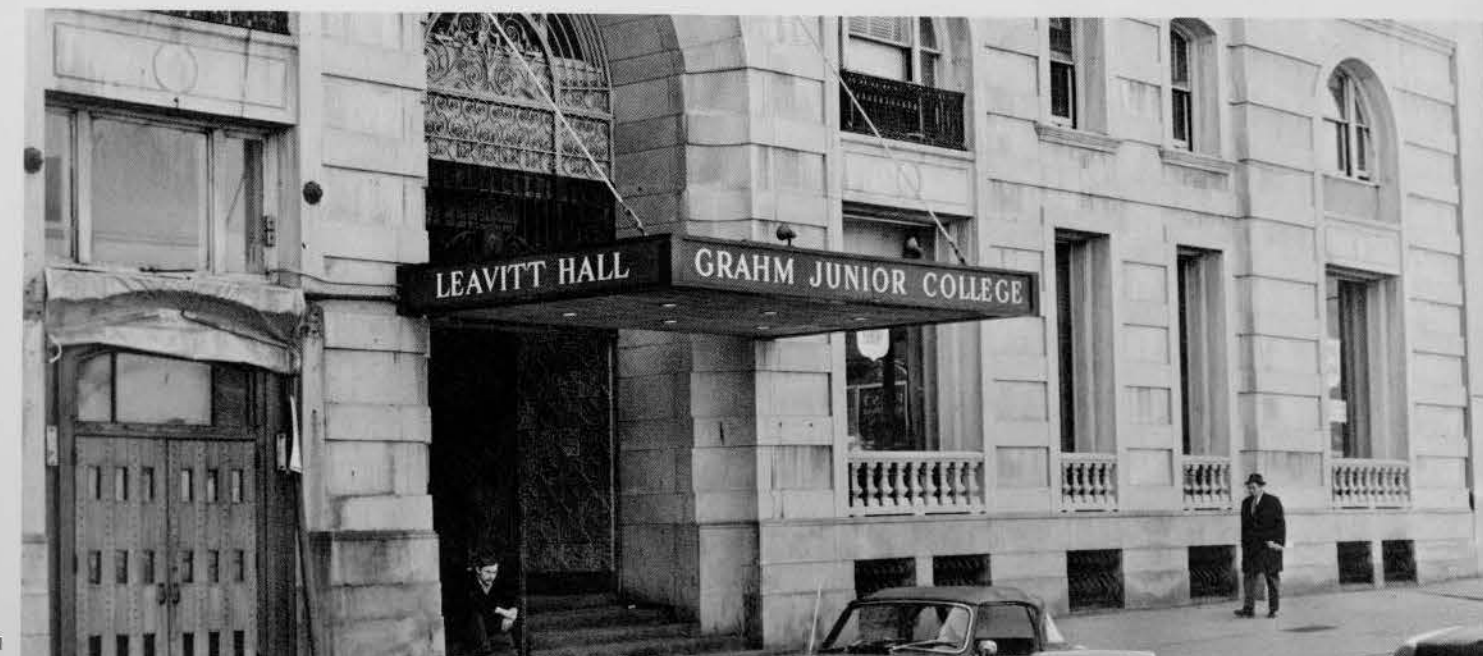

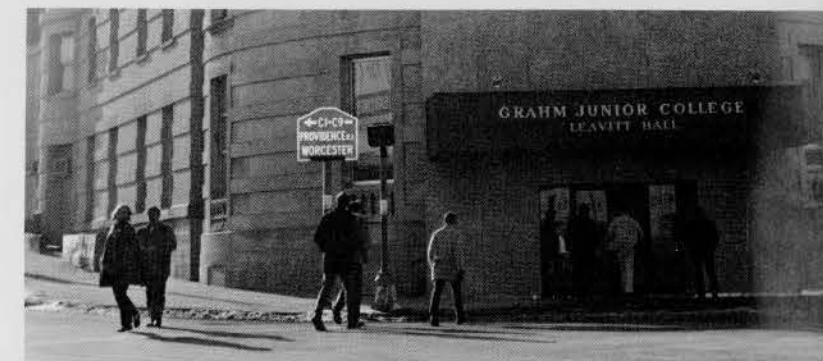

“A man’s reach should exceed his grasp”

In this concept he places his ideals
above futility and despair.
He carries precious hope
to the areas of need.
He may not reach the ultimate,
but his achievement
lies in working towards his dreams;
dreams he hopes can go on . . .
until they become reality.

AND FACULTY

President Milton L. Graham

Everyone wants peace. Pictures of the starving children in Biafra brought the horrors of war with stunning impact into our very homes. I heard a number of Biafran students in this country say, "That kind of peace is meaningless. It's slavery. We don't want peace on that basis. We want freedom and are willing to die for it, to sacrifice every last Biafran, if necessary. For us the war is not over and never will be until we are free."

Is peace meaningful at the cost of your freedom? Are there conditions under which peace is not acceptable? Is marching in with guns and tanks to guarantee peace, the kind of peace we would want for ourselves?

Is peace merely the absence of formal war? If we continue to supply weapons so that soldiers, women and children are mutilated and killed, will we have achieved peace for ourselves?

There was a time in American history when our forefathers faced this decision. They pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor toward rectifying the situation. For the patriots of 1776, peace at any price was not acceptable. In 1861, we faced a situation, and hoped for war. In 1865 the question of secession from the United States was solved in the same way that the very same question was solved in Nigeria in 1970. In both cases war could have been averted if secession had been accepted. Should Biafra have been permitted to go its own way? We join World War I "To make the world safe for democracy" and World War II to save the world from Nazism. We participated in Korea to save the South Koreans from Communism, and we thought we were rendering similar service in South Viet Nam.

Do we have an obligation to help others? We must ask this question with a deeper sense of involvement than ever before. The world has become too small for one nation to prosper at the expense of another, or one race, or one religion, or even one person to flourish while others are deprived.

All the problems we once considered national, or even local, we realize now are global. There is no need to ask "For Whom the Bell Tolls." We must keep asking ourselves, what is Peace? What must we do, to achieve it?

At the end of World War I — the headlines read PEACE . . . At the end of World War II — the headlines read PEACE . . . and at the conclusion of a recent "sit-in" at one of our local colleges — the headlines read PEACE . . .

Just what does this word mean? To some it means contentment — to others tranquility (or a means of escape through usage of drugs, etc.).

We, in administrative positions hear a great deal about freedom for students and adults to live as they see fit. The seventies will have little or nothing to do with the sixties.

Not only is this a new decade — it's a new life for many of us. If we face up to the fact that the graduates of Graham Junior College and their peers will soon be making decisions that will affect our very existence, then the "older generation" will soon learn what the word PEACE means. I would not like to equate peace with war. I feel that peace is something that is sacred to each individual. It is a "feeling" that is very difficult to express to anyone but himself.

The absence of physical conflict does not mean peace, because we have been involved in a "cold war" and are now involved in a "hot war".

In asking my fourteen year old son what he thought peace was, he replied, "I don't know, but I'm happy so I guess I'm at peace with myself. I wish everyone could be happy."

Vice President Jack Nesson

Dean of Faculty

Recorded history has shown us conflict between men, and if the future can be predicted from the past, there will always be conflict. It isn't only that man covets that which belongs to someone else, but that man in his enthusiasm about what he has and what he believes wants to impose his will on others. This leads to conflict — mental and at times physical. Peace is freedom from fear; the security that you can live your own life as you choose within the framework of society. Peace must start with oneself. If one is satisfied with what he has, he may not covet and may share with his neighbors. This means that peace is costly, and many are not willing to pay the price. It means that one cannot sit idly while his neighbor goes hungry. It means that one nation cannot expand and get richer by taking the manpower and natural resources of lesser nations. It means that nations must work together with each other in striving for world health and well-being without worrying about who will get the credit. It means mutual respect and allowing one nation to choose its own way of life and to be free from worry about another's way being imposed on it.

Dean Edward F. Lynch, Jr.
Dean of Students

Mankind has always recognized its inability to realize its individual collective capacity for attaining happiness. When analyzing this problem, man has attributed his lack of fulfillment to the absence of world peace. Man has known no greater frustration than his experience in search of peace.

It has been suggested that peace is so difficult to attain because man has not been able to adequately define it, therefore he does not know where to search. We are inclined to think of peace today as the cessation of hostilities, a coming together of heads of state, a resolution of major issues; e.g., territorial expansion, hunger, sickness, and pestilence. The history of man is replete with examples of conferences, pacts, and grand designs for peace. Few have met with even token success.

I would prefer to think of peace in different terms. Peace to me is an individual experience for man that stems from an inner tranquility resulting from a true understanding and acceptance of his own limitations as well as those of others. When each individual has attained this level of understanding he can begin to relate positively to others, he has predisposed himself to love and to be loved in return.

I believe that predisposing oneself to love and to being loved in return is the necessary ingredient to attaining inner peace as individuals. We can then begin to reflect our happiness in our relations with others and in this way spread feelings of good will to all men. I believe this is the one route to peace that has not been given a fair trial.

Although the Graham Junior College "Lions" had a less than promising season — two wins and thirteen losses, the team showed great spirit and enthusiasm under coach Frank Ruderman. Leading Graham in scoring was six feet, four inches Captain Rudy Mooring, averaging 22 points a game. Another forward who should be commended is six foot three inch George Physic, averaging 20 points a game. The guards were led by the hustling Dana Barros, a very under-rated ball player. Little John Ashworth, Mike McKeever and the blond giant, Ken Duchnowski also contributed to the total harmony of the team. Charles Granville, the seventh man and strong Teddy Meyers along with John Luceno rounded out the first nine.

The Grahm Hockey Team coached by Paul Hussey progressed significantly over last year, but their 1-14-1 record did not express their marked improvement. Grahm's one win and one tie came early in the season when problems had not yet materialized. At semester break, Grahm lost some of its strength and due to the inexperience of most of the freshman team, they could not recuperate rapidly enough to finish honorably. Coach Hussey had several outstanding hockey players that should be recommended. Captain and center Tom Hopkins led Grahm in scoring with 20 goals. Also playing well offensively were Gil Case, Norman Reid, and hard hitting Jeff Mozavero. Ken McQueen led the defensive charge with George Dudasik and Ken Huddy. Paul Cailler defense.

Entering the final week of the baseball season, the Grahm baseball team found themselves in strong contention for the Massachusetts Junior College Conference title and have a playoff berth assured.

Pitching has been the prominent factor in the success of the team. Ken Duchnowski and Andy Hartery have combined into the strongest 1-2 punch from the mound in the league. Both have three victories apiece with Hartery's only loss coming from a disappointing performance by his mates. Phil Wallace, the Lion's third pitcher, has been troubled by a sore arm most of the season. Coach Eydenberg, however, hopes that Phil will be ready during the playoffs.

The team has hit fairly well and has improved greatly since the beginning of the season. Duchnowski (563), Catcher Tom Logan (380), Hartery (375), and standout Centerfielder Danny Burr (375) have been the most productive hitters in the lineup.

One of the most satisfying aspects of this year's team is the heads up brand of ball that the Lions are playing on the field. Except for a couple of lapses earlier in the season, the infield of Ray Messier (3rd), Vito Molfetto (SS), Paul Doherty (2nd), and Barry Krauss (1st), have played extremely well. Running this infield is Tom Logan, who is having a fine year. Tom usually bats in the cleanup spot and his hustle keeps everyone alert and ready.

Several other players who have added to the success of the Lions are: Jim Cail (RF), Pat Maher (OF), Tom Hopkins (1st), and Jeff Mogavero (OF).

CHEERLEADERS

To our ten Gramh cheerleaders, every game is a championship rivalry. Present at every Basketball meet, they enthusiastically urged the team on with their vitality and great spirit. They compose their own cheers consisting of mostly soul beats and jumps. Throughout the season they practice faithfully to insure precision and style. Six of the cheerleaders are returning next year, and it is expected that they will carry on this tradition.

Delta Omega Delta

Founded as a Social Fraternity, Delta Omega Delta has grown immensely in its short tenure at Graham, to become one of the strongest and most influential organizations on campus.

Its members, although very much involved in the school's social activities, are also a vivid part of many other organizations at the school. From the Crier and WCSB, to the Student Leaders and Dormitory officers, Delta has become a very important part of Graham Junior College.

ELAN

Publications for Elan, literary magazine of Graham Junior College occurred in February and May. To meet deadlines, the staff came together weekly and discussed articles to be considered for publication. Material for the magazine was derived from both the staff and the college community at large. Now features such as photographs, illustrations and word games were evidenced.

Epsilon Tau Sigma Sorority's motto is "endeavor to serve". During the past year Epsilon Tau Sigma has sponsored such activities as a Fashion Show, Tea, Italian Dinner, Slave Day, and a candy sale. In order to become a member of Epsilon Tau Sigma, one must participate in a three week period of orientation which leads to the formal initiation into the sisterhood, which is the proudest moment for all the sisters.

Kappa Sigma Beta

Kappa Sigma Beta is the oldest and largest fraternity on campus. During the school year 1969-70, the brothers of Kappa were involved in many student activities including intramural and varsity sports, the student leader organization, the yearbook, the college newspaper, WCSB radio and television, and dormitory and student councils.

The fraternity played an important role in the social life at the college by sponsoring two successful dances, a winter weekend, a dinner dance and active participation in the Community Involvement Program.

The Alpha Chapter of Kappa Sigma Beta is an important part of Graham Junior College.

Soul Time Review

Left to Right, Bottom Row — Toni Almeida, Brenda Hampton, Cynthia White, Sheryl Boone. Second Row — Ron Miller, Henry Jones, Ron Jenkins, Danny Burr; President, Art Shlevin, Wayne Curtis. Third Row — Mark Powers, Edward Watkins, David Bruce.

The prime objective of the SoulTime Review is to provide a creative outlet to musically inclined students. Their sound varies in that they do not limit themselves to any one style. Striving for professionalism, they persevere strenuously and pride themselves on their ability to capture their audience. Thanks to their talent and dedication, their major February show was an outstanding success.

Student Council

The membership of the Student Council is made up of freshmen and seniors who are elected by the students in the early fall. Any student, obtaining an application form is eligible to seek office. The Council is a representative group of the entire student body. Its purpose is to present problems from the students to the Administration in order that they might be solved.
